

ABSTRACT

Computer-implemented system and method for assisting a user with the completion of online forms, by providing form modification based on input by the user. Certain form modifications are handled by computer instructions executing on the user's computer, and not by the server that provided the form to the user's computer.